

Sheringham – June 2019 (Away Day)

A total of 16 people were picked up from both Northampton and then Thrapston on this dry and warm day before starting the journey to Sheringham in Norfolk.

After a comfort stop, the driver dropped everyone off in Sheringham for a coffee break before meeting up again to start the walk along the coastal path towards Weybourne.

At a point not too far into the walk, four people, who did not want to do the entire walk, headed back to Sheringham where they would spend the rest of the day exploring this quaint seaside town.

The remaining 12 carried on, with a short break so several could go down to the sea shore to dip their toes in the North Sea. Little bit chilly!

Eventually they arrived at Weybourne a little later than planned as the walk had been leisurely. There was a steam train back to Sheringham quite soon, otherwise there was a wait of one hour for the next one. It was decided to go straight back and spend the remaining time exploring Sheringham rather than stay in Weybourne, although there were a few interesting sites to see there.

After a late lunch of fish and chips (what else in a seaside town?) and a stroll around the town, it was all too soon time to get back on the bus for the return trip.
